Story

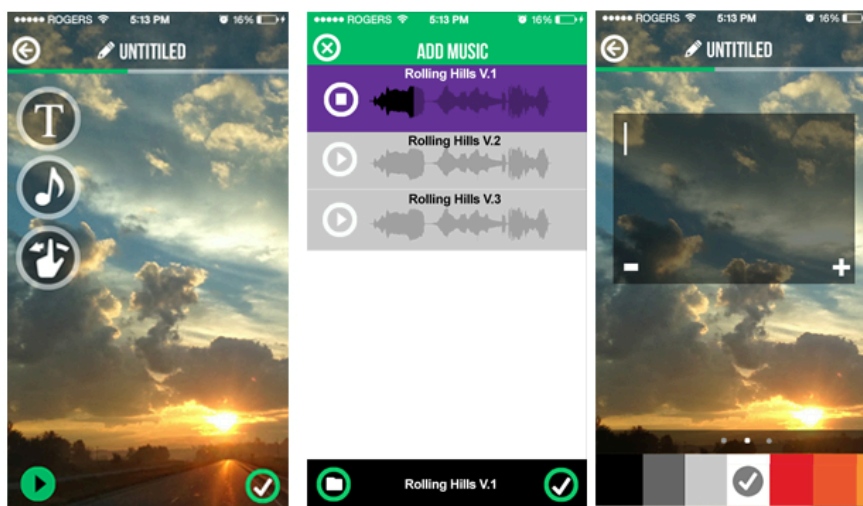

Create and follow developing stories

Social networks are for sharing moments about what's happening right now. It's impossible to follow a story which develops over time and connect the dots.

Tipcast is for sharing a story that develops over time

Many stories unfold over days, weeks, months and even years. With Tipcast, you can watch other stories unfold over time, or create your own story. Each update to a story is a chapter 15 seconds long, making it super easy and fast to publish updates on the go directly from your smartphone.

- Upload your photos
- Zoom and pan through to focus on details
- Add simple text overlays
- Add a soundtrack from our royalty-free music library
- Add voice narration by recording with your smartphone microphone

What's Our Story?

My name is Josh Barkin and I've been working with a team building mobile apps for years. We built reward apps for AT&T, Sprint, and Virgin Mobile USA/Canada. More recently we focused on iPhone apps. Along the way, I've stopped exercising, drank several cans of coke and a lot of coffee. I've got into some pretty nasty eating habits. I'm hoping to change my routine and document my story. I think I'll be more motivated to reach my goals if I publish my story as it unfolds. My team is going to give everyone the tools to share a developing story. Whether it's a personal project, a business project, or a local news story you want to share, or follow.

Milestones to Date

We built a prototype but have much work to do. We'd like to launch Tipcast in the iTunes App Store by February 2014. We're truly grateful and thankful to all of you who can help make Tipcast more than just a great way to tell a story, but a platform to share progress, one chapter at a time, and lead to happy endings. Thank you from team Stagename!

Risks and challenges

Over the past year, we worked hard to understand our technical limitations through a number of prototypes and iterations. We're confident that both your feedback and actual usage data will help guide our decisions, and so we can continue to deliver great results. We're just as determined to build on a product we can use for our own projects as we are for everyone else!
