Story

What will be developed:

A fully featured open source brand-new Document Translations Portal. It will be used by anyone in the world, translators and people in need of translations alike, with no geographic or cultural restrictions.

Funding period

Jan 8 2014 - Feb 22 2014 (45 days)

Why it's so important:

Quality document translations services are expensive or very expensive while the need for such services is gradually rising, both in communities and among government bodies. What we have is a clear situation of an inadequate demand/supply case. The lion share of expenses for translation services can be attributed to mark-ups of translations agencies – the middlemen – while translators themselves are usually compensated at a considerably lower level.

This is why this unique portal that will automatically connect translators and clients (be it individuals, communities, corporations or governments) is a clear win-win solution that will tremendously benefit both sides!

The idea is to let clients post their projects for free and let qualified translators bid on them. In the end, client selects translator(s) to provide translations services. This way not only clients will save up to 96% of costs compared with using services of agencies but also translators will be compensated adequately and many home-based translators will get an easy access to national and global clients.

Features and benefits: The Portal will have following distinguishing features:

- Is easy to use with intuitive design and rich list of features
- Unique proprietary financial management system allowing seamless bidding, transactions and project management
- Reliable proprietary Escrow system ensuring mutual fairness and transparency: on the one hand, translators only get paid when clients approve their work; on the other hand, the system ensures that clients have appropriate funds to pay for projects and that translators get paid upon completion of projects
- Proprietary public forums
- Proprietary platform for instant messaging (both public and private) between translators and clients. Any details discussed remain completely confidential which would be hard to ensure with third-party providers' platforms
- Extensive system to rate translators and clients based on quality of their work, adherence to deadlines, efficiency of communication etc., and to post appropriate reviews
- Strong protection against spamming and top-notch security features
- The highest degree of optimization for search engines. Due to the unique proprietary algorithm that is an integral part of the Portal, any project posted becomes immediately (in real time) featured on search engines
- ...and much more!

Let's make history together!

Let's lend a helping hand to many translators and people who need essential translations services but can't afford to be taken advantage of by big translations agencies!

Risks and challenges

We've been working on making this technology real for a while and are very optimistic about the outcome. The only risk we anticipate is not being able to get enough founding within a month. But we hope for you, folks, - the destiny of the project is in your hands!!!
