Story

Ever since I was a child, I would always look over my younger brother, see what he's into from time to time, and at one point I saw him playing a game called Minecraft, so I asked him why he would stick with that game instead of moving on like he normally does, his response "I like this game because I can make things and build things." but for those people who make things and build things do they really understand what they are making. In an attempt to teach my brother what he was truly doing in minecraft I created this. an amazing program where you can mix metals to create endless amounts of new metals, alloys and chemical compounds!

Risks and challenges

Every project has it's downfalls, every program it's errors, I intend to expand on this program while finding as many errors as possible and fixing them, if I cannot fix an error there are people that I know who can.
