Story

Whether you're a family, a group traveler, or a lone ranger, planning even a slightly adventurous trip can be complex and a headache. Flights, hotels, budgets, dates ... the data is plentiful and confusing.

For me -- it's all about planning. Get the best prices, compare to the budget, and share it with my friends and/or family quickly. Then as the trip approaches ensure that everything is ready-to-go for a stress-free time away from home.

If you have the right data, you can make the right decisions.

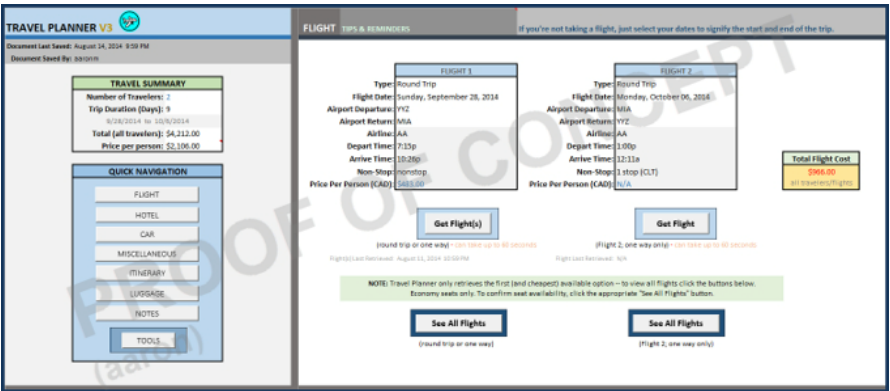

How Travel Planner V3 Started

I have always tracked and shared my travel configurations with the other travelers, but things get messy and complicated with no standards. There was simply no acceptable tool for our needs, even including some popular trip/itinerary planners such as Triplt.

Built in Microsoft Excel (note: required to use Travel Planner V3) as a macro-enabled workbook, I am in the process of excitingly creating this to share with all travelers.

Funding period

Sep 1 2014 - Oct 1 2014 (30 days)

Main sidebar and "FLIGHT" section

The premise is simple -- you go somewhere, whether via flight or otherwise, and return. But it gets confusing on where to go, how to plan, and especially how to budget. Travel Planner V3 is a budget-oriented tool that reverses the common method of inputting all of your supporting information into websites, where it's often lost later, then sloppily transferring to your notes, copying all your email reservations, or simply no saving of information at all. With inputting your supporting travel configurations into a single, unified tool, everything is stored! Travel Planner V3 focuses on easily planning, budgeting, saving, and sharing your travel configurations with others.

The tool helps from the initial planning stages of a trip all the way until after your trip. You can check out more of it's features further below.

Where the Funding is Going

The mock-ups and some basic functions are complete but there still needs plenty of refinement, VBA coding, and testing. Moreover, this application is currently being developed for Canadians (CAD pricing), but if funding is complete, I will also make a USA version (USD pricing). Global users can still use the application, but will have to convert (or navigate the website) to local currency -- otherwise all functions remain the same!

Quick Video Overview:

Note: since this video, a couple of software bugs were found and fixed.

There's a lot (and I mean, a lot!) more to the application than you may think. Here are some details about what to expect in the final product:

- ➔ Elegant and logically designed, with easy-to-use navigation. A static sidebar is always on the left (for the main tab) with navigation buttons and your Travel Summary. Everything that can be automated, will be automated, and little additions like mini pop-up calendars for date selection streamline actions.
- ➔ "Scroll-less" design principle -- have everything you need right in front of you or at a simple click of a button.

- ➔ Easy to share. Automatically see who saved the workbook last and on what date/time, so you're always looking at relevant information. Any time you search for flights/hotels/cars, the date/time is displayed so to remember exactly when that action was completed.
- ➔ Because the tool is local, you can use the entire workbook offline (aside from retrieving lowest flight details). No internet connection required as you plan.

➔ Automatically retrieve the lowest priced airfares with a click of a button (retrieved via ca.kayak.com) for quick and easy budget planning. Miami this weekend, or Rome? Price it out quickly and save all the configurations.

➔ Supports up to two flights -- round trip or one way.

TIPS & REMINDERS

Enter the cost for each of the following categories for your trip in this section. Add your own categories if needed.

For costs that recur daily, like food, select the Period of "Daily". Other expenses can be estimated on a one-time basis or for the whole trip, such as petrol or single events, so select a Period of "Cumulative".

➔ Ever forget an item at home? It's not fun. Use this section to easily click off common luggage items for your trip -- even include your own.

Additional Features: An easy-to-read cost report (shown below) to see where your money is going. Plus, a one-page summary sheet ready for printing with all your travel details -- just print and go! And so much more, such as the "Travel Snapshot" feature!

Thank You

This is just a quick overview of Travel Planner V3. It's fluid, elegant, and easy-to-use. But most importantly, planning your next adventure will be easier, and more accurate, than ever.

Thanks for reading and for your potential support! Reach out with any questions.

Risks and challenges

[RISK = LOW] Testing often finds errors, and some more challenging than others. If an application-breaking bug is found and cannot be resolved without sacrificing features, the scope of the application may be changed slightly.

[RISK = LOW] Travel Planner V3 is being designed for newer laptop and widescreen displays. Because it uses a concept of "frozen panes" for the navigation sidebar, if your screen resolution is lower than 1280×800 (optimally 1600×900) then you may experience cells that cannot be viewed as intended. This is generally not an issue for laptops built after 2008.
